Goldsmith Maid. 2.14, one of the greatest campaigners ever known, won It has spoken on temperance reform.

In an address upon the northern Baptist convention, which held its first annual meeting in Oklahoma City last May, Rev. A. B. Coats, D.D., of Hartford, said that this convention was a federation to obtain some sort of unity for the interests of missionary efforts in all the home fields of the denomination. It might serve as the voice of the denomination upon the great moral questions of the day, backed by a million and quarter voices. Object of Convention. hacked by a million and quarter voices. It has spoken on temperance reform, on the iniquity of the white slave traffic, on the denominational press, and many matters of importance to the denomination. The convention is trying to bring to bear upon the hearts and consciences of the church members a conception of their responsibility for carrying on this work of misity for carrying on this work of mis sions and give the churches to under-stand that the duty of the hour is not fully done until the need has been A brief session of prayer followed the address, a custom which was fol-

The adoption of this budget, the speaker said had been one of the most powerful agencies for uniting the churches of the denomination, and had been a blessing of incalculable value. The Northern Baptist convention has decided that in future none of these societies shall be allowed to have largo debts. It will be put up to the denomination to say just what shall be done in these fields. With wonderful success, Dr. Witter said, the churches had taken hold of the budget apportionment, which had been made by states and then by churches. New England and Connecticut had been notably responsive.

Belongs With Laymen.

Rev. P. C. Wright, paster of the church, was asked to speak and responded by saying that he felt the Northern Baptist convention was our salvation because it was taking it out of the hands of the ministers and a few committees and hoards and putting it into the hands of the laymen where it belongs. ("Amen, the best thing I've heard in these conferences," from Dr. L. Call Barnes,) Rev. Mr. Wright went on to speak strongly of the necessity of putting the work into the hands of laymen and the business men of the congregations.

The First Baptist church was reported to be laboring with church debt by its pastor. Rev. W. T. Thayer, but would probably do its share on the budget. Other pastors who told what their churches were doing were Revs. H. B. Rankin, Noank, F. J. Buddington of Quaker Hill, E. W. Potter of Jewett City, J. A. Elder of New London and Rev.
